

CERP presents a public lecture by Dr. Jesse Rothstein, UC Berkeley

Reforming Teacher Incentives

Any scheme aimed at raising student achievement using teacher incentives needs a reliable way to evaluate how teachers are performing. But is this really feasible? Dr. Rothstein will discuss the latest research into the measurement of teacher effectiveness, in particular his work casting doubt on the suitability for this task of 'value-added' test score data. Followed by questions and answers.

Open to the public – all are welcome.

Segal Rooms
SFU Harbour Centre
515 West Hastings Street, Vancouver

13th October 2010, 5.30-6.45 pm

Dr. Jesse Rothstein is Associate Professor of Public Policy and Economics at the University of California, Berkeley. He recently served as Senior Economist with the US Council of Economic Advisers and as Chief Economist for the US Department of Labor.
