Only six percent of the Earth is jungle, but more than half of all species live there.

What are some important products we use that come from forests?

Forests are the source of numerous non-wood products, including bark, dyes, fibers, gums, incense, latexes, oils, resins, shellac, tanning compounds & waxes. Fruits, nuts and berries are harvested as food. Maple syrup is another important forest product we use in Canada. Forest-based foods (such as berries and wild mushrooms) contribute an estimated $725 million to the Canadian economy.
